

The pattern holds in all States, except for North Carolina

Maryland (Democratic won in General)

- Null model

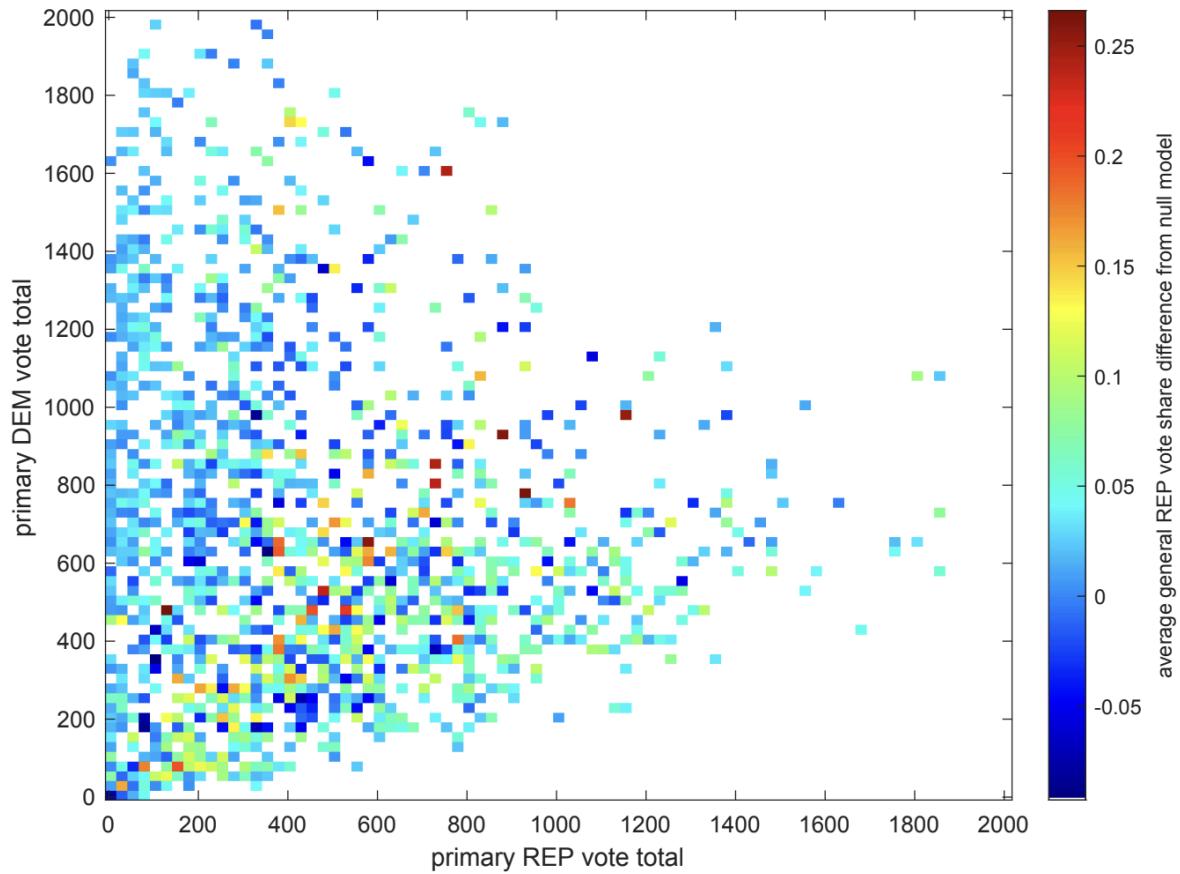

- Weighted average difference (weighted by general turnout) (REP):
0.0122991477038109
- Vote share of REP in General Election: 0.4504

How Well Does Turnout for a Party in the Primaries Predict Turnout in the General Election?

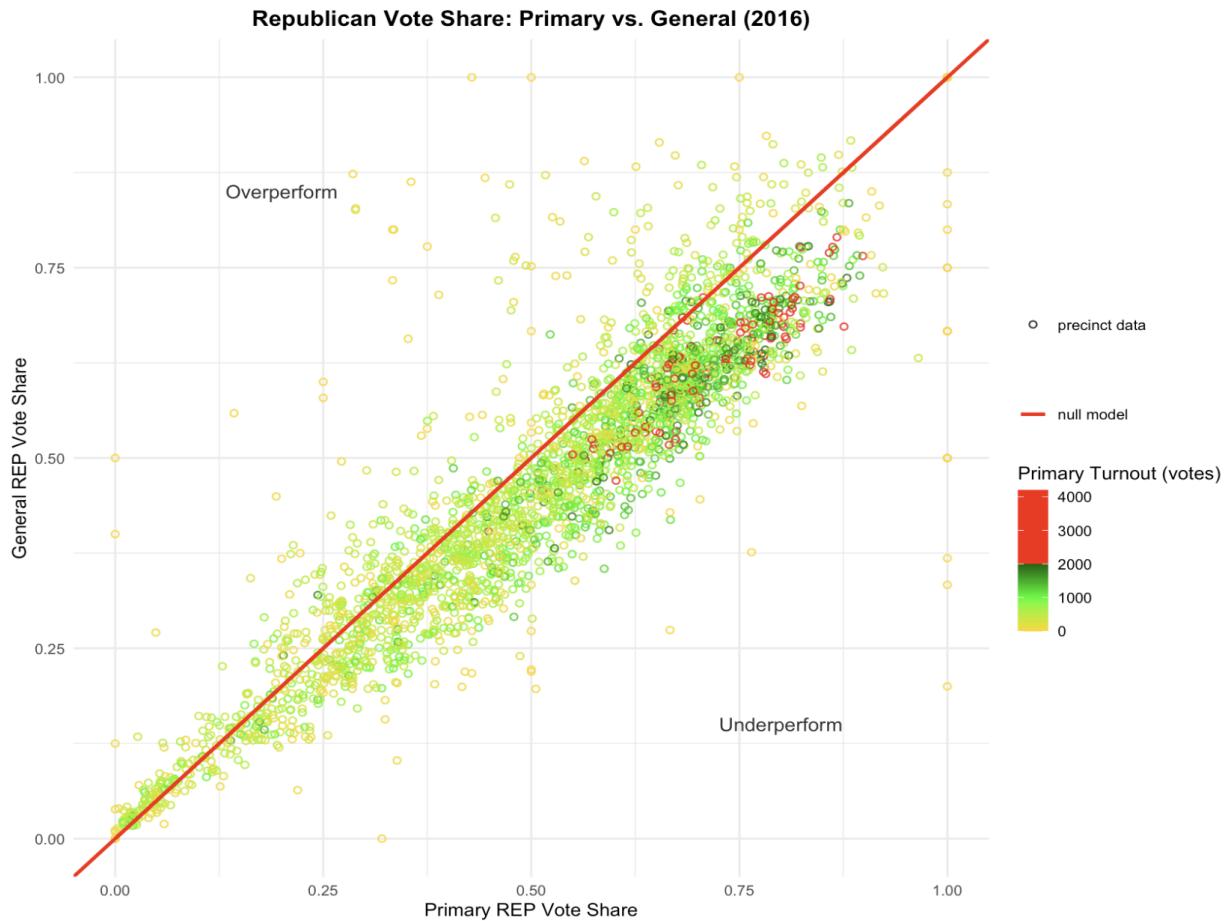

- Heat map

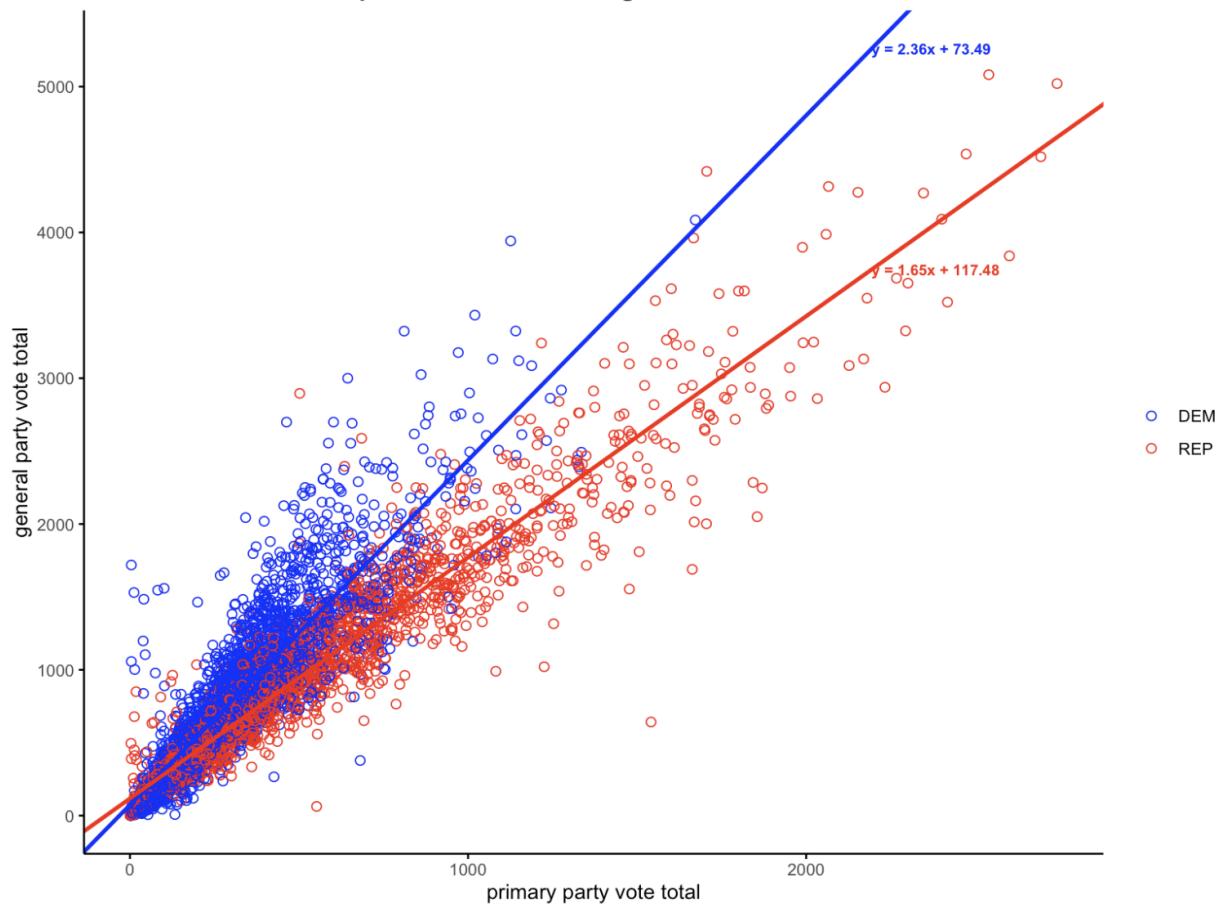

Florida (Republican won in General)

- Null model

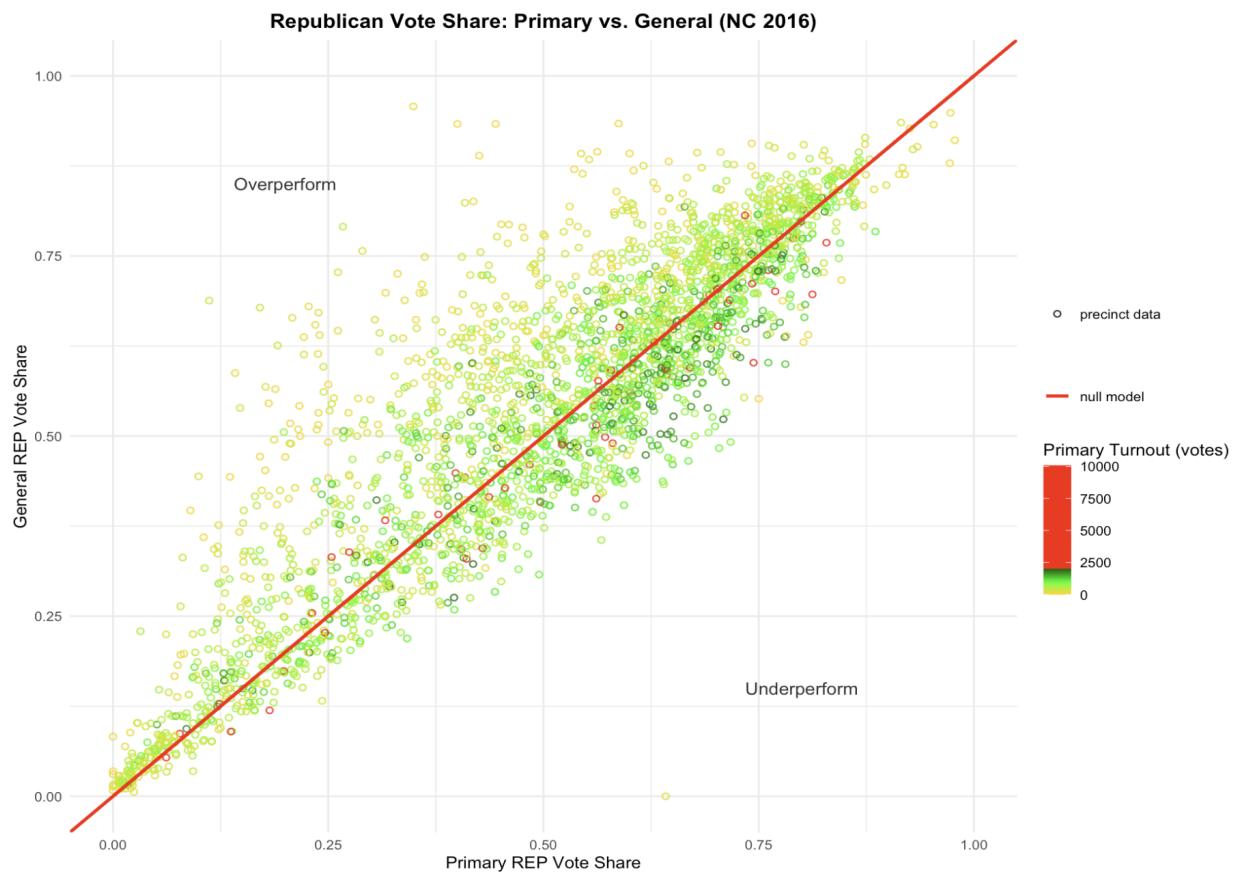

- Weighted average difference (weighted by general turnout) (REP): -0.061317665778683
- Vote share of REP in General Election: 0.506

How well does turnout for a party in the primaries predict turnout in the general election?

North Carolina (Republican won in General) - swing states

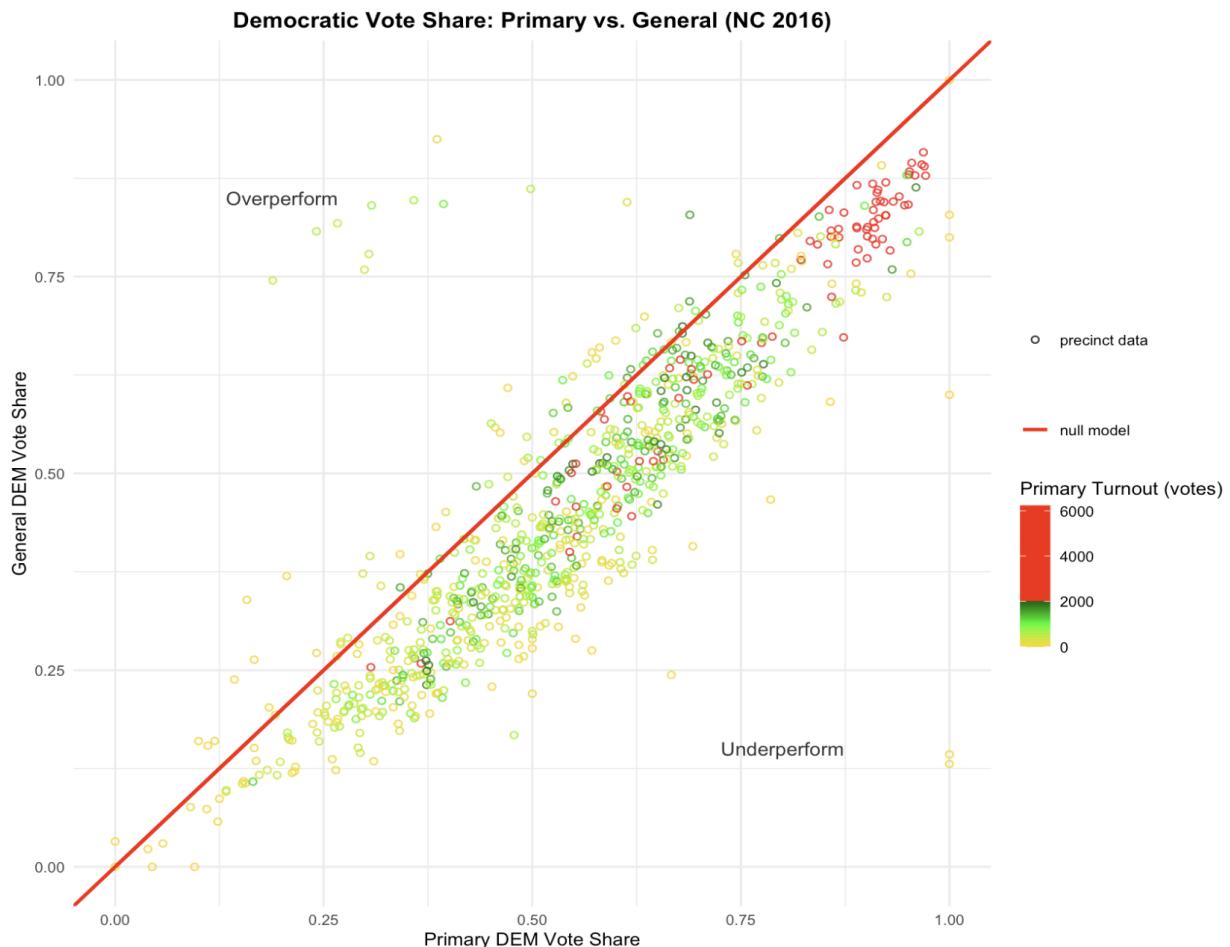

- Weighted average difference (weighted by general turnout) (REP): 0.00677766655822485
- Vote share of REP in General Election: 0.518

How well does turnout for a party in the primaries predict turnout in the general election? (NC 2016)

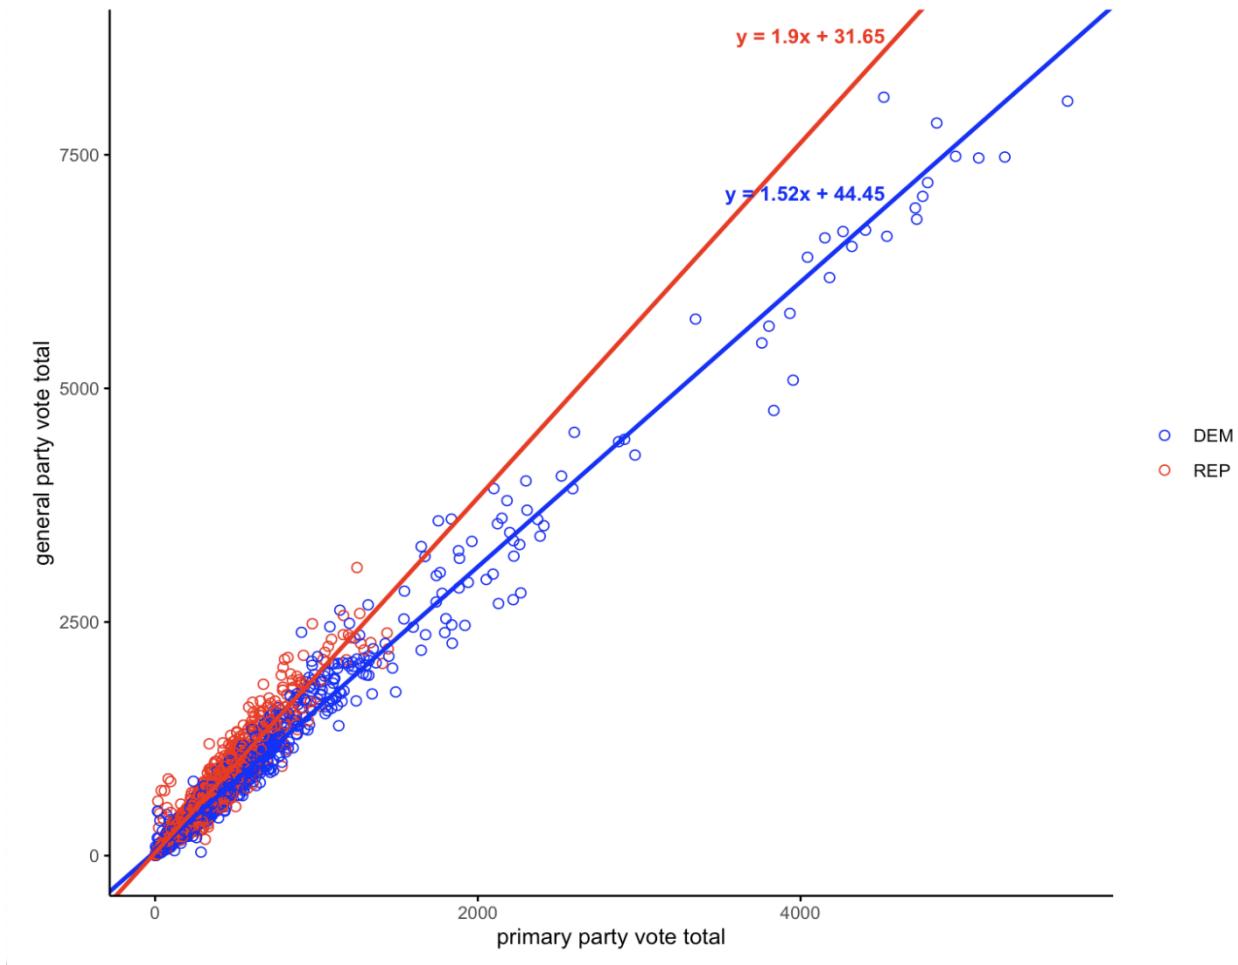

Oregon (Democratic won in General)

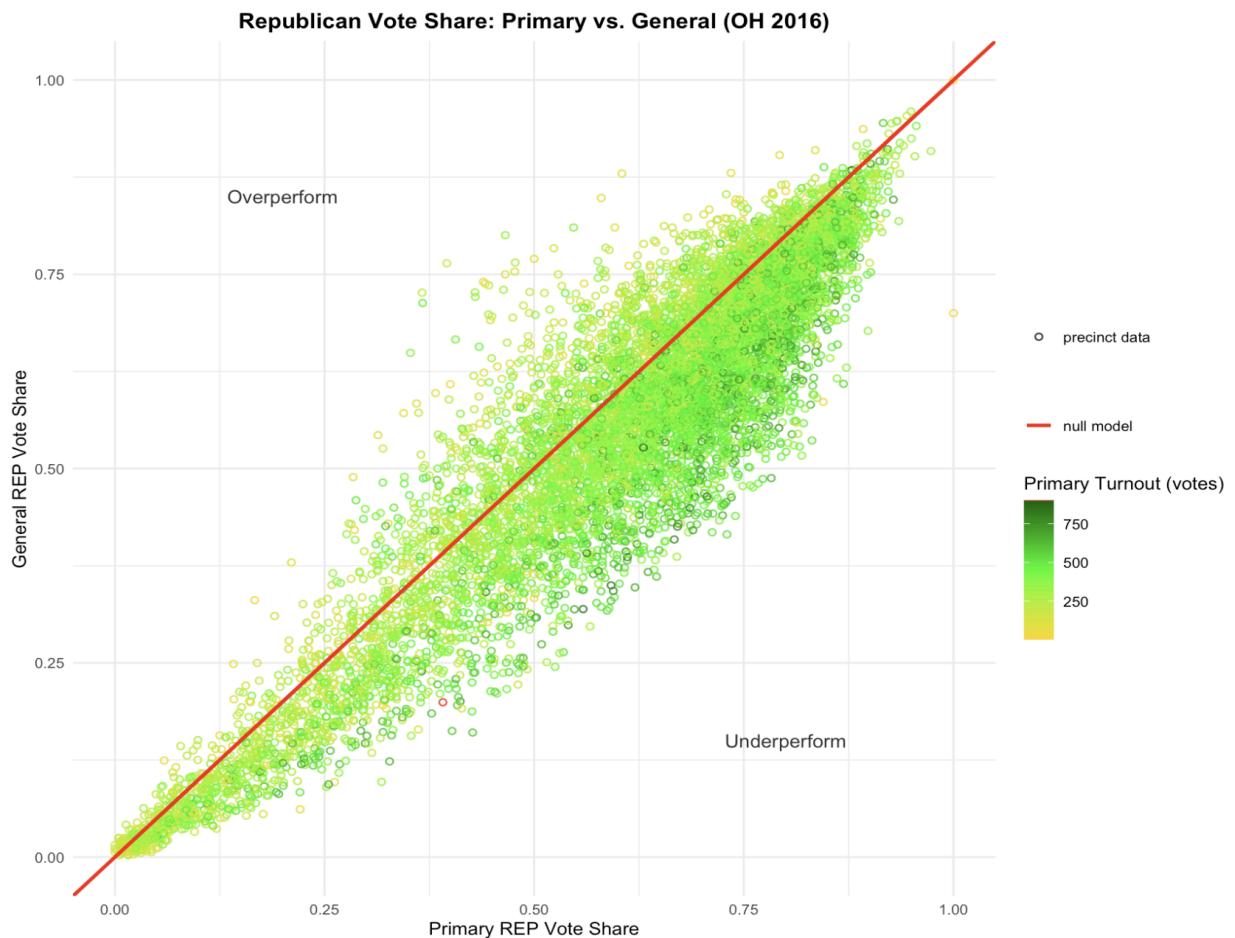

- Weighted average difference (weighted by general turnout) (REP):
0.00545008236138594
- Vote share of REP in General Election: 0.435

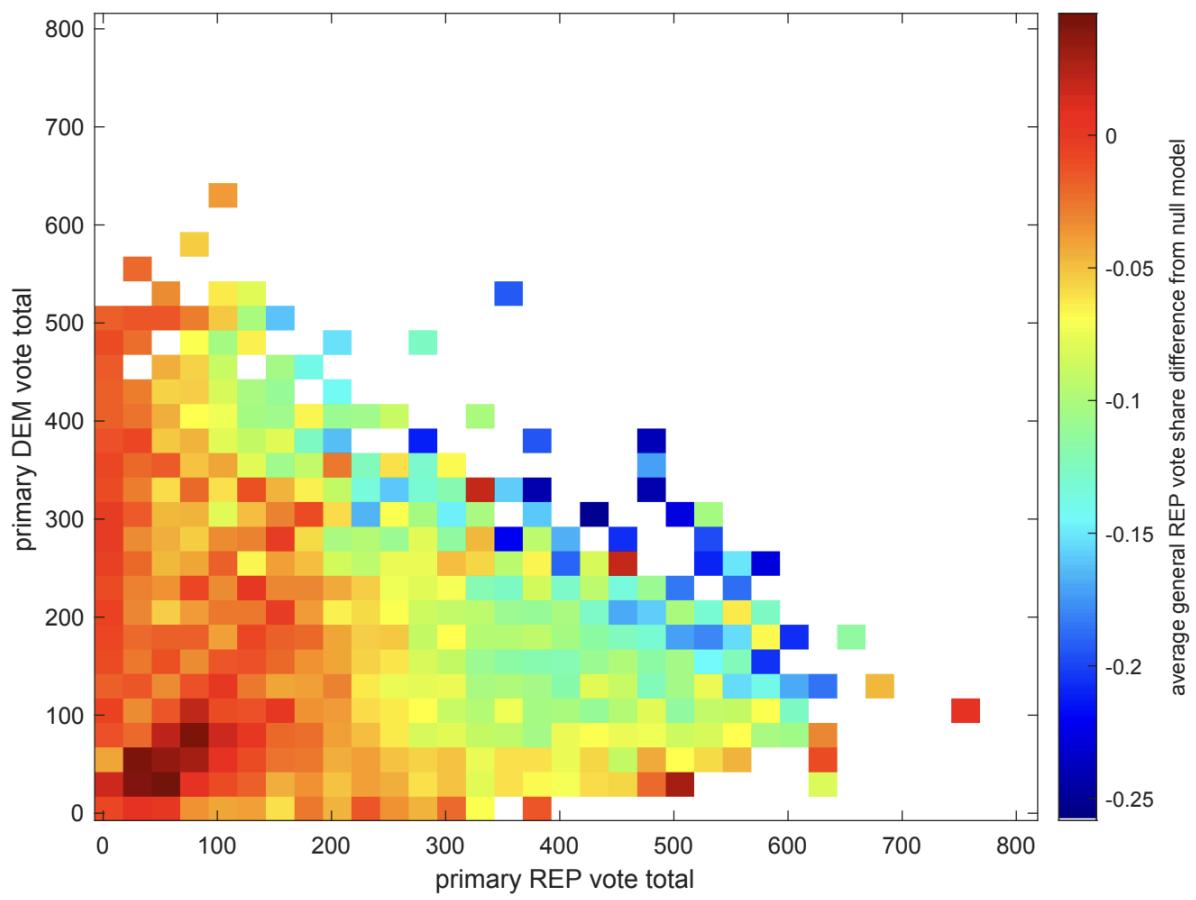

How well does turnout for a party in the primaries predict turnout in the general election? (NC 2016)

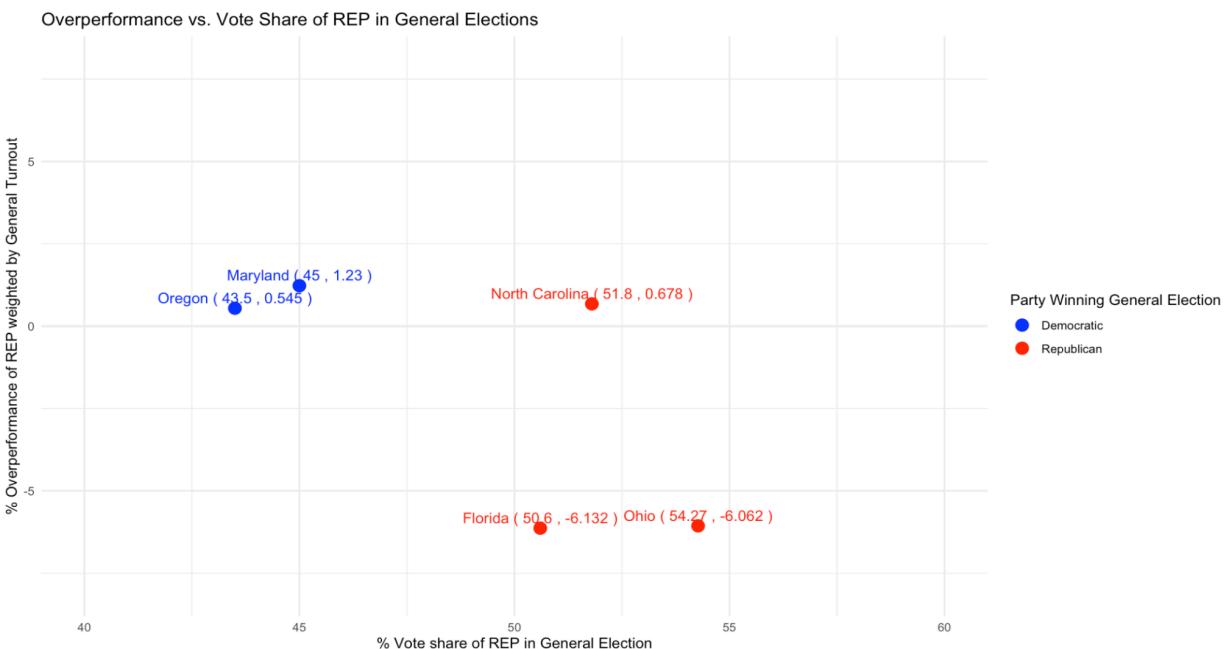

Ohio (Republican won in General)

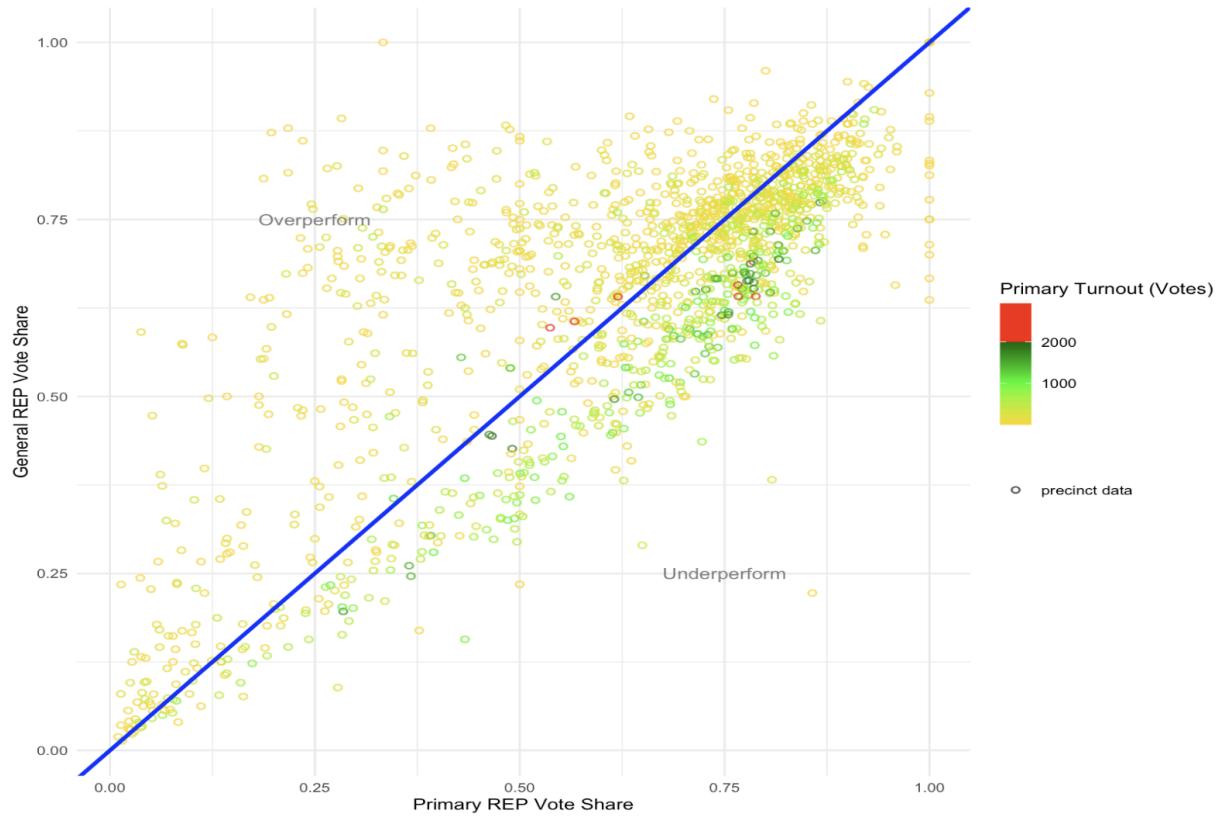

- Weighted average difference (weighted by general turnout) (REP): -0.060624564574695
- Vote share of REP in General Election: 0.5427
-

Multi-state plot:

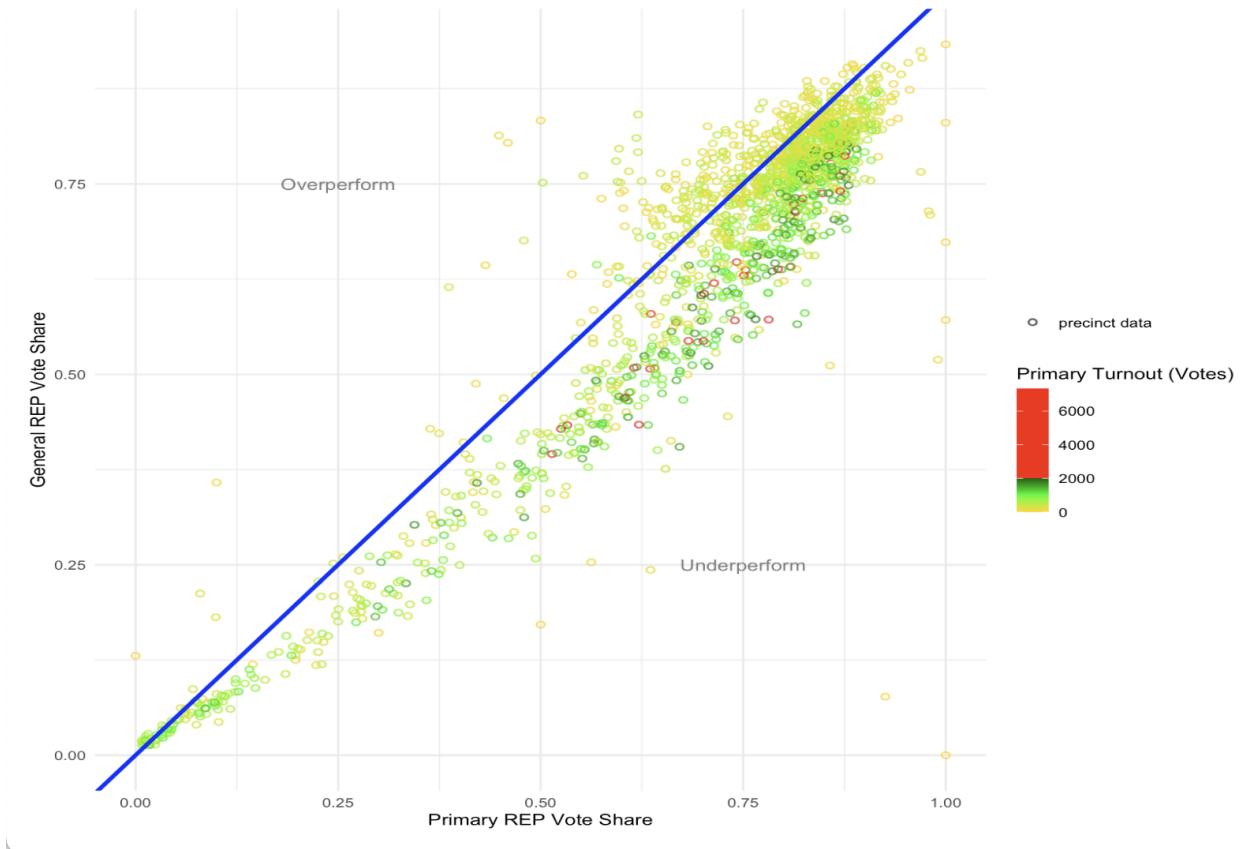

Arkansas (Republican won in General)

- Weighted average difference (weighted by general turnout) (REP): -0.04615506032985
- Vote share of REP in General Election: 0.5807482

Tennessee (Republican won in General)

- Weighted average difference (weighted by general turnout) (REP):
-0.0743880547569517
- Vote share of REP in General Election: 0.6072203